NO WIND DAY

E's are on the start line for 9:00 Warning

PRO Chip Mann hopes for two races this morning. One more is required to declare this event a regatta. The C's will start no earlier than 12:00.

Yesterday - balmy, sunny, beautiful day on Minnetonka - just not for sailing.

A few quips from the day:

"I wonder if the wind number is higher than the wave height"

Judge Dave Gross announced: " Wind velocity 1.2; Gusts to 1.0"

PRO Larry Krause - "I'm setting a line here; we will be ready to go in a few minutes. He-he-he"

Chief Judge for C fleet (THIS IS ENTIRELY IN JEST): "We are suspending all infractions of Rule 42.

OOCHing, SCOOCHing, SMOOCHing

Roll tacks, attacks

Sculling, Hull cleaning

Anything to get another race" - Ok, the editor paraphrased a bit but you get the jist.

Seriously, the PROs agonize on these days and there was a serious look in their eyes last night as they pondered today's forecast and plan. All ILYA RC are volunteers who are also family. They are sailors now or in their younger days and understand the frustrations of poor weather conditions impeding what we all like to do - SAIL! Today is a new day with the hope.

Party time - the island was alive all afternoon when the C's were abandoned. This was a change from the rest of the week when it was a tropical (due to humidity) oasis for RC during the switchovers. It was a day of reclining or reading earlier in the week. Yesterday, the young men mounted a rousing volleyball game that lasted for over an hour. Four boats passing by danced, cat called and cheered on the game - or the young men. The heated game converted to water games on a raft which was hysterical as three six-foot Barrs were winners in both volleyball and king of the raft. Cheers from the spectator fleet, on shore, arose as one by one the young men added to the weight aloft as they attempted to get the raft under water. The raft won ALWAYS and would tip the young C boaters each time.

Dinner - simply exquisite, Connie Blanchard. This was perhaps the best banquet food ever. Shrimp and tenderloin done to perfection. Generous, generous servings. Dessert of Bananas Foster was her final touch of the event. Connie is mother to a past X ILYA Champ who has since moved west. Look who has remained connected to sailing all these years.

The night's here have been magical on the island. It is spacious enough to allow dancing to music, room under the tent to feed 500 last night, yet quiet spots to converse with friends. The sunsets have been beautiful at sunset and then the water still and serene as guests are ferried back to Carson's Bay. It's been a marvelous way to spend a week with lifelong friends. Thanks, Minnetonka.
