One Day

Event

It's either one day or the other. That's the way Cedar, IN, goes. For the last two years, the fleet has enjoyed Saturdays to rekindle friendships and festivities; this year it was a relaxing Sunday without races. But what fun for the C fleet to gather together again with such welcoming folks. Jeff Doubek from the East Coast. Michigan sailors Lanka and Keenan. Madison, nearby Maxinkuckee and this year's winner was LaBelle who sent a full contingent. The Cedar gang wowed us again with out of this world breakfasts. --- And lunches-----And dinners. Thanks to the Cedar Lake YC for loving us as much as they do.

Pewaukee's Matt Malone - US Naval Academy Sailor

Malone Wins Recovering Warrior Regatta

Matt Malone is just finishing up his first year at the Naval Academy (last exam today)! This year has been full of challenges but also many rewards. Growing up sailing in the ILYA has definitely paid off for him at the Academy. It gave him a huge advantage in his bid for a spot on the Varsity Off-Shore Sailing Team. Being on the sailing team provided a much needed break from the stresses of plebe year. One of the most memorable moments was having the opportunity to sail in the Recovering Warrior Sailing Regatta sponsored by Chesapeake Region Accessible Boating and the National Sailing Hall of Fame on April 28th. Matt, along with his friend and fellow Mid Brandon Frantz sailed with Gary, a U.S. Navy Veteran, on a Navy Colgate 26. Matt steered, Brandon was on the jib, and Gary was on the

Pewaukee's Charlie Allen Chosen for USODA National Team

Practice Begins Memorial Day

The US National Team is run by the United States Optimist Dinghy Association. The USODA strives to make children lifelong sailors. The mission of the United States Optimist National Team is to develop the top Optimist sailors in the United States to prepare them for success in international competition; create awareness of opportunities and avenues in sailing after the Opti years; develop a Corinthian spirit and teamwork within the Opti community; produce good role models for the less-experienced sailors within the USODA; and stress the importance of safety, fun, and good sportsmanship in sailboat racing. The USNT is funded by parents of participating sailors and does not impact the USODA budget. The USNT uses the results of Team Trials and the Spring Team Qualifier to select sailors. - from USODA website

And here is Charlie's invitation:

Dear Charlie,

On behalf of USODA and the USNT Committee, please accept a sincere and heartfelt congratulations on your performance at the 2018 Optimist Team Trials. Based upon your results, the USNT Committee is pleased to invite you to join the United States National Team for the 2018-2019 season.

Representing the United States of America on any level is a very special honor. You and a very limited number of the elite and most accomplished Optimist sailors in the country will be asked to carry the torch of success, honor and pride by joining the United States Optimist National Team. To complement your extraordinary local or regional race team, the United States National Team has revamped its curriculum to offer you and your teammates some unique opportunities to increase your skills to even greater heights.

Also selected were Chicago's Peter Barnard and Christian Prendergast who attend our ILYA Championships and LaBelle's RWB Chip.

Roble Shea In Europe

Ever wonder how you get to the Olympics?

Click below to follow Steph Roble and Maggie Shea. They are two young Midwest women from Wisconsin and Illinois who have beat the "coast" mentality to try to compete for the US in 2020. The life is grueling, self-sacrificing, perhaps near poverty level and extremely fatiguing due to the daily discipline. 2018 is year two which is the hardest year. In year one, everyone is excited to see teams declare interest. Local clubs are proud of their sailors and give the initial burst. In year three, it's the last gasp before the selection process and year four is the home stretch. But Year Two is when champions are made. The travel expenses are the same as year four but supporters are perhaps not on board yet. They are waiting to see who the favored horse will be. But to the Olympic hopeful, Europe in the Spring is mandatory; a coach is essential to get the most out of each practice day; funding is indispensable. Hard decisions are made - get a job and do this part-time or take the leap and go all-in? If ever there was a time to give your sailing dollars, it is year two.

Follow these two girls as they practice, practice, practice with the best.

Melges - Rowe -- High School during the day and sailing every afternoon

If you are on Geneva, you will see Melges-Rowe

Two high schoolers are giving up after-school curriculums to hit the water each day. It's time for them to begin thinking Europe also, like Roble-Shea above, but they still have high school on their plates. Again, the fatigue level is phenomenal to comprehend as they tackle each day anew with full vigor and enthusiasm. The price of equipment alone is staggering, then airfare and housing and coaching. Melges - Rowe are a bit disadvantaged as they need to take from Lake Geneva all she has to offer to provide the conditions they need to progress while studying each day like regular teens. Time for fundraising? Somehow this duo is managing all plus sending out letters to everyone they know. They are a dedicated pair of boys with loads of potential. Consider a donation if you know Melges-Rowe.

Malcolm Lamphere is Set to Engage

College Nationals - then GO!!!

Our last known Olympic hopeful has another two weeks of college and then he is off to the races. Malcolm Lamphere has followed a plan through college which propels him into position to be highly competitive this summer immediately. First he was college singlehanded champion, then he was a team race aficionado (that gives him incredible knowledge of the rules) and national champion on the Yale team, then last summer and this year he has begun the physical training and weight gain to compete at the highest level in the Laser. This has come at a sacrifice to his end of his college career and to his team as he is sizing out of the competitive 420. Yet he has been there for Yale when they need him.

Graduation comes in a moment, college nationals in two weeks and then Malcolm is off to a new quest. He has proven himself consistently but has not had the steady opportunity to be supported by the US Sailing Team. He will have to work hard to get that final step. His results are most impressive - then add, he is finishing his college curriculum. He is a past NA Champ, third highest finishing sailor at Sailing World-Miami, the old Olympic Classes Regatta. He is simply said "the real deal".

Lastly, he is the type of individual you want representing us anywhere - on the water, at a job or just as a loyal friend. From early on, Malcolm has had the reputation of a fair, honest sailor. This year he was recognized as such by his college district. -- Wish him well and look for his announcement of participation in the ILYA Foundation for support. He's just had a FEW things on his plate.

Why use the ILYA Foundation to donate?

Donate to our Olympic Hopefuls

- 2% administrative fee. This is exceedingly low for a charitable organization.
- Online banking into our sailors' accounts to promote hasty, efficient payment while they are on the road. Think about it, they are in Europe and their money is here.
- They belong to US! - the ILYA
- They make us a part of their team
- They promote our name to the world
- The ILYA is a 501(c)(3) charitable organization. The IRS rules allow special definition of conditions for Olympic contenders.
- Their reports help us to understand more about the sport.
- In addition to Olympic training, they jump back into scows at every opportunity
- It's a chance to promote ILYA sailing at home by jumping on the bandwagon, the US by supporting the Olympic endeavor and the world by helping our sailors move ahead.

Wisconsin State HS Championship

Saturday, May 19

The Wisconsin State High School Championship will be held at Milwaukee Yacht Club on Saturday, May 19th. All high school teams from Wisconsin are welcome. There are 115 active HS teams in the Midwest Interscholastic Sailing Association, and in an effort to grow High School sailing in Wisconsin and encourage participation in this regatta, we are making it a single-day, single-division event and allowing mixed teams (sailors from different registered high school teams) to participate. The NOR with contact info is attached, and more information is at missa.hssailing.org.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks,
